IIBA Announces Leadership Change

WHITBY, ON--(Marketwired - December 08, 2016) - The Board of Directors of International Institute of Business Analysis™ (IIBA®), the leading association for business analysis professionals, announced today a change in leadership. Effective December 5th the Interim President and Chief Executive Officer of IIBA is Ken Fulmer, previous Chairman of the Board.

"I look forward to working with our membership and community partners to leverage new opportunities to increase membership value and growth for the business analysis profession," says Fulmer.

Fulmer was formerly CIO at Delek US and the Chief Technology Officer at Sunoco, Inc. He has been active in the IIBA community since 2007, and has held several positions including; Chapter President for the Philadelphia Chapter; member of the International Board of Directors since 2011; and in 2016 was appointed Board Chair.

The Board of Directors of IIBA strongly believes in the core purpose of the association: "To unite a community of professionals to create better business outcomes" and is committed to accelerating the implementation of the association's strategic plan. The board is confident that Ken Fulmer will focus attention on providing value to existing Members, Chapters, volunteers, and all stakeholders, as well as widening the sphere of IIBA to a broader audience. Fulmer plans to engage the community collaboratively to move strategic initiatives forward and support the personal and professional growth of our members.

The Board thanks former President and CEO Stephen Ashworth for his service and contributions over the past 3 years.
